

Name _____

Date _____

Underlining and Quotation Marks

A. Using Quotation Marks with Direct Quotations (pages 268–269) Add quotation marks before and after people's exact words in the following sentences.

1. Here is a wonderful book of riddles, Carrie said.
2. She added, I wonder how many answers you can guess.
3. Try this one, she stated.
4. What, she asked, goes farther the slower it goes?
5. I know that one! Michael declared.
6. The answer, he stated, is money.
7. That's right, Carrie said. Now try another one.
8. What has a head and a tail but no body? she asked.
9. Michael said, I don't know the answer to that one.
10. The answer, Carrie stated, is a coin.

B. Using Quotation Marks and Commas with Direct Quotations (pages 268–273) Add the missing quotation marks and commas in the following sentences.

1. Mrs. Henderson asked What is the oldest manufactured material?
2. I'm not sure Lester answered but could the answer be glass?
3. You're right Mrs. Henderson stated.
4. Here's another question she continued.
5. She asked As you go down into a well, does your weight increase, decrease, or stay the same?
6. I'm just guessing Tony answered but does your weight decrease?
7. Mrs. Henderson answered That's right.
8. She continued Here's the last question of the day.
9. Can the skin of a pig she asked be successfully grafted onto the human body to repair burns?
10. Yes Lester answered. I just read that in a magazine.